Save the Children

While technology has become more accessible, safety on the internet has become a topic that all children need to know about.

Haha! I've got many friend requests today!

Oh! Oh! Who are they?
Let me see!

I don't know! But it's not your businesses, Kiri!

That's weird. If they don't know you, why are they sending you friend requests?

Maybe because I'm likable and other people say good things about me. So people want to be my friend.

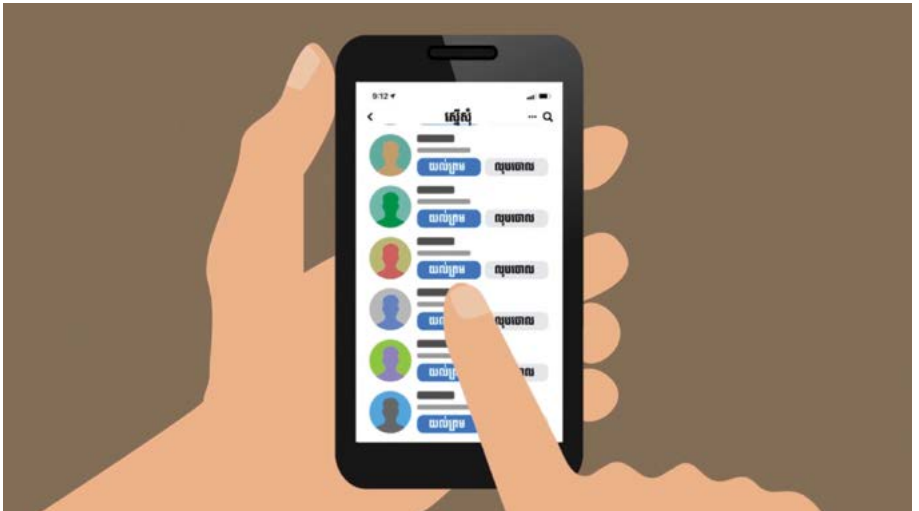

If there is a stranger on the street asking you to be your friend, would you be friend with him/her?

No way, mom!

It applies to Facebook and social media too! You can't just accept strangers to be your friends. You have to think carefully before you accept the friend request...

...or click on a link to advertisements, photos or videos because we never know what would happen! Sometimes, it contains viruses or can steal information from your phone too!

Really? But my friends don't seem to have any problem. I saw them sharing their friends' photo. It looks fun, mom!

We can't let our guard down, my child! Criminals who see your information can use it to cheat other people or blackmail you. You have to protect your personal information. When you talk or write, you shouldn't reveal information such as...

...your full name, password or address! You should also remember that information can be seen on your photos and videos too.

What about some of my friends making appointment to meet people they know online face-to-face?

That's very dangerous!
Meeting someone you only know online in real life is very risky even if they are your friend's friend because they are still strangers to you!

If there is someone asking to meet you or asking you to send photo or video of yourself, please let mom and dad know immediately!

Your dad is right! Let's wash your hands and eat! I will let you know more!

Let's wash our hands!

You can't also trust everything that you see online because it can be inaccurate or not entirely true, so you have to find other reliable information to compare or talk to other people to confirm the truth!

You should also talk to a trusted adult if something or someone ever makes you feel upset, worried or confused.

This could be if you or someone you know is being bullied online.

There are lots of people who will be able to help you, like your teachers, parents or you can call to 092 311 511.
